To Whom It May Concern:

During the summer of 2022, I have had the privilege of working with Dheekshanya Senthamilselvan, an intern working with the League of Women Voters of Radnor Township. For her project, she pursued the integrity of our election system in Pennsylvania by focusing on cybersecurity by:

- gaining an overview from documentaries on the topic;
- using internet resources to research challenges;
- participating in LWV sponsored webinars on the election process;
- meeting with a cybersecurity expert from Citizens for Better Elections;
- interviewing a local judge of elections and a fair election advocate;
- Zooming with PA Department of State officials familiar with our SURE system;
- developing an attractive and informative PowerPoint presentation summarizing her work; and
- presenting her findings on local cable television and in person to peers.

Throughout the summer, Dheekshanya has demonstrated the following traits:

- Risk-taking – She pursued a “Schoolology” posting to become an intern and went the extra mile to learn about election systems very different from those in her homeland.
- Responsibility – Whether it was being punctual, riding her bike to a meeting, or finishing tasks well in advance, Dheekshanya is one on whom you can depend. “Be prepared” defines her style in word and deed.
- Social grace – As a mature young lady, she approached each task with dignity and poise. She not only wrote thank-you notes to all interviewees but also exhibited unusual tact in reaching out to someone who missed appearing for an interview to reschedule it!
- Responsiveness to suggestions – Dheekshanya quickly completed each task and even expanded her project to go beyond technical problems to include human factors. When the design tool CANVA was mentioned as a source of graphics for her presentation, she did her homework and effectively inserted images.
- Technological expertise – When I needed help with my computer or cell phone, Dheekshanya has come to my rescue. Her skill, self-motivation, and drive to solve problems have assured me that I was in good hands!

Dheekshanya is a remarkable young woman who possesses the innate ability to find success in the field of her passion – technology. Even more astounding is the range of personal qualities that will assure that she achieves excellence throughout her life. Without reservation, I recommend her for acceptance to your institution. I anticipate she will be an asset to your school and make a difference wherever the future leads her.

Sincerely,

Roberta Winters, Ed.D.
